CAMELLIA JAPONICA

All American Camellia Selections for 1961

BONNIE MARIE—A cross of a selected clone (C. saluenensis x C. cuspidata) x C. japonica. The flowers, a delicate shade of phlox pink, are borne over the entire plant, making a combination of a mass bloomer with large flowers, which average 4 to 5 inches. Flower information is variable, early blossoms are semi-double, with a few petals extending through a mass of bright, golden stamens. Later blooms, considered more typical, are anemone form, with a mass of petaloids in the center. Upright bush plant with large glossy leaves of rich green and more hardy than most other species. Plants have bloomed normally after exposure to temperatures of 10 degrees above zero. Blooms Mid-November through April.

KING'S RANSOM—A true beauty of the Old South, coming from Magnolia Gardens. A pale pink with definite resemblance to Debutante. Blooms, averaging 4½", are of loose peony form. Habit of growth is upright, foliage is serrated, growth is more rapid than for most Camellias, and both flower and plant have proven hardy. Begins blooming about the time Debutante finishes.

It boasts flowers averaging from 3½ to 4 inches, with crisp, long-lasting substance. An ideal multiple purpose plant, it grows in shade or full sun and produces a profusion of blooms, even on young plants, for a long blooming period. Plant Patent No. 1539.
